

EDITORIAL NOTE

Prof. (Dr.) Jyotshna Sahoo

Journal of Library Insights & Innovations (JLII) Volume 1, Issue 2

The publication of the second issue of the Journal of Library Insights & Innovations (JLII) marks an important step forward in our journey of fostering scholarly dialogue and innovative practices within the domain of Library and Information Science (LIS). Building upon the vision articulated in our inaugural issue, this volume further consolidates our commitment to advancing knowledge through evidence-based research, interdisciplinary perspectives, and the principles of open access.

The articles included in this issue collectively highlight several emerging trends. First, there is a clear predominance of literature, reaffirming its centrality in research and academic discourse. Second, the growing culture of collaboration signals a shift toward interdisciplinary research approaches. A notable feature of this volume is its strong emphasis on bibliometric and scientometric studies, particularly in the context of agricultural and medical sciences.

Beyond bibliometric analyses, the issue also explores institutional research contributions, highlighting the role of academic libraries as dynamic knowledge hubs. The integration of digital tools, institutional repositories, and library management systems demonstrates how libraries are transforming to meet the demands of modern research environments. These developments resonate strongly with national and global priorities aimed at strengthening research infrastructure, promoting open knowledge, and fostering innovation-driven growth.

What emerges from this issue is a compelling narrative: libraries are no longer passive repositories but active enablers of research, collaboration, and knowledge creation. The contributions in this volume reaffirm that LIS professionals are at the forefront of this transformation, continuously adapting to technological advancements and societal needs.

I extend my sincere appreciation to all the authors for their valuable contributions, the reviewers for their critical insights, and the editorial team for their dedicated efforts in bringing this issue. Their collective commitment ensures the quality and relevance of JLII as a platform for scholarly exchange.

As we move forward, I invite researchers, practitioners, and scholars to continue engaging with JLII by contributing original research, sharing innovative practices, and participating in meaningful academic dialogue. Let us continue this journey with renewed enthusiasm, guided by the shared vision of advancing knowledge, embracing innovation, and upholding the ideals of open and inclusive scholarship.

Prof. (Dr.) Jyotshna Sahoo

Editor-in-Chief, Journal of Library Insights & Innovations (JLII)

Professor & Head, Dept. of Library and Information Science

Dean of Humanities and Social Sciences

Berhampur University, Odisha, India